

Dr. Tadafumi Kato graduated University of Tokyo, Faculty of Medicine, in 1988, and got M.D. degree. After residency training, he moved to Shiga University of Medical Science in 1989 and started the research of magnetic resonance spectroscopic investigation of bipolar disorder. In 1995 he got Ph.D. degree. During 1995-1996, he studied in Department of Psychiatry, University of Iowa. In 1997, he moved to Department of Neuropsychiatry, University of Tokyo. In 2001, he moved to RIKEN Brain Science Institute, as the head of Laboratory for Molecular Dynamics of Mental Disorders. Since 2008, he has also played a role as a director of Disease Mechanism Core. His major research interest is neurobiology of bipolar disorder. He published 161 peer reviewed papers in international journals.